1. On 10 November 1948 a secret meeting was held at the headquarters of the PCI Milan Federation, under the chairmanship of Giuseppe Alberganti. The meeting was called to discuss the instructions given by Palmiro Togliatti to Communist executives during his recent stay at Milan. Among those present were Francesco Scotti, Alberto Malagugini, (fnu) Cinelli, Gaetano Invernizzi and Mario Muneghina.
2. The agenda of the meeting included a discussion of what measures were to be taken at a given time for the organization of "chain" strikes and for the intensification of the "non-collaboration" campaign.
3. In this connection, it was decided that, if a wide-spread strike were to be opposed by the syndicates in the Free Confederation of Labor, every effort should be made to avoid conflicts between the various groups of workers, limiting the action to sabotage within the factories, so that production would be reduced to a minimum. Alberganti made the following suggestions as to the best means for achieving the greatest results:
 - a. Interruption of the electric power, with eventual occupation of the control cabins;
 - b. Concealment of all the implements which are considered essential for the functioning of the machines;
 - c. Employment of all possible deception for stopping workers from carrying out their jobs;
 - d. Employment of action squads to watch all elements who might attempt to stop sabotage acts, using such intimidation and reprisals as the situation warrants; and
 - e. The occupation of factories in case of police intervention.

4. The subject of unemployment was also discussed. It was announced that recently an unspecified sum of money has been deposited at the PCI Milan Federation as "political fund", to be used for the assistance of unemployed. An appeal was made for weekly contributions by Communist members toward this fund. It was decided that all zone heads would be instructed to send to the Milan Federation Secretariat a complete list of unemployed living in his zone, who are not Communists or who show some uncertainty as to their political leanings. These elements should be assisted with the money in the "political fund" so that they might eventually become Communists.
